Some More Prohibition.

The people of Bath county hardly realized what they were voting on themselves when they voted the Prohibition law last September. Very few of them knew they were voting that no alcoholic or intoxicating liquid, that might be used as a beverage, could be sold, bartered, loaned or given away even by druggists on physicians' prescriptions in cases of actual sickness. When they found out the force of the law they thought that they could send out of the county and get what they needed, anywhere for family use as medicine. But the late General Assembly of Kentucky, in its wisdom, enacted, and the Governor approved, a bill, which is now the law, that nobody shall bring into a county where the Prohibition law is in effect any such liquid, the penalty for violation being not less than $50 nor more than $100, except that an individual may bring in on his person or in his personal baggage not exceeding one gallon for his own private use. But he can't bring it in for any one else. Here is the law:—

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

"Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons, individual or corporation, public or private, to bring into, transfer to, or deliver to any person, carrier or agent, deliver or distribute, in any county, district, precinct, town or city, where the sale of intoxicating liquors has been prohibited, or may be prohibited, whether by special act of the General Assembly, or by vote of the people under the Local Option law, any spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors, regardless of the name by which it may be called; and this act shall apply to all packages of such intoxicating liquors whether broken or unbroken.

"Provided, individuals may bring into such district, upon their person or as their personal baggage, and for their private use, such liquor in quantity not to exceed one gallon; and provided, the provisions of this act shall not apply to druggists or licensed physicians, to whom any public carrier may deliver such goods, in unbroken packages in quantity not to exceed five gallons at any one time.

"Sec. 2. Each package of such spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquor, regardless of the name by which it may be called, whether broken or unbroken packages, brought into and transferred to other person, corporation, carrier or agent, delivered or distributed in any Local Option territory shall constitute a separate offense.

"Sec. 3. Any person or persons, individual or corporation, public or private, who violate the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of violating the Local Option law, and shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense.

"Sec. 4. And the place of the delivery of such goods shall be held to be the place of sale.

"Sec. 5. And all laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed."

"ALMOST TREATED"—Two Germans were on their way to work, when one of them, Hans, observed their countryman, Schneider, on the other side of the street, sweeping the walk in front of his saloon.

"Adolph," said Hans, pointing to the saloon man, "just look at Schneider doing his own sweeping. By golly, he is der meanest and stingiest man I ever see."

"No," retorted Adolph, "he is not so stingy as you think. He almost treated me worse."

"How do you make out end?" questioned Hans. "How could he almost treat you worse than I did?"

"Well, dat happened dis way," said Adolph. "Vone cold mornink I dropped into Schneider's place and sat me down by der fire for a little warmness, and Schneider was cleaning der bar up. He tooked all der bottles from der shelves, viped dem clean, and sat dem on der bar; den he tooked der glasses and did likewise; after dat he viped der shelves off, and put der clean glass and bottles back."

Ven he finished dis work he looked over to me and says: 'Vell, Adolph, vat are you going to have? Und just as I was going to say 'beer,' he says, 'rain or snow?'" —San Francisco Chronicle.

LETTER FROM WINGATE, MISS.—Mr. Editor: On this beautiful Sunday evening I will endeavor to give you and the Bath county people in general a faint idea of my home in the faraway South.

Wingate, my present home, is situated on the M. J. & K. C. R. R. and is a very nice little lumbering town, the largest lumber plant being owned by J. R. Buckwalter, of Clark county, Ky.; the plant is worked principally by Kentucky boys, who are a jolly set down in the Southern jungles.

Augusta, the county seat of this county, is situated on the M. J. & K. C. R. R. and on Leaf river, which is the principal river in the eastern part of the State. There are thousands of logs floated down this river to Mossy Point and Soranton, which is situated on the Gulf and is the largest lumbering center of Mississippi.

We have the pleasantest climate in the States bordering on the Gulf could imagine. I can truthfully say that this winter is the first winter has ever experienced that he has not been snugly housed up from the snow and ice that we have in old Kentucky. The thickest ice was not more than one-fourth of an inch, with no snow at all. The lovely spring time is now at hand, the trees are putting forth their green leaves, the flowers are in bloom, and the time is here when the pretty young damsels and their Kentucky and Alabama escorts can go violet hunting, rest and tell the old tale which never grows old under the shade of the sweet magnolias.
